City tours in your pocket

Problem: Tourists are getting wet... Tourists find themselves caught off guard every time it rains – either the walking tour is canceled or they're left to brave the weather. Did the metro experience delays? You might find yourself separated from your tour group with no idea of their whereabouts. Whether you speak Spanish or English, discovering everything about this new European city on foot means you'll only have those two language options available. Are you a budget-conscious student? Brace yourself for some awkward moments when you politely decline to tip your "free" tour guide.

Problem: Tour guides have it hard. Being a tour guide nowadays is not as rewarding as one might expect. Guides are too dependent on the companies, limited to working just two hours a day and in most cases having to share a big portion of tip based salaries, giving the same exact tour over and over again. Additionally, they often face frustrations during their tours, whether it's ending them with a sore throat or dealing with people leaving before paying, there's also the significant responsibility of caring for a group of about 30 individuals who aren't covered by insurance – if anything goes wrong, it falls on them or worst, the tourists.

Solution: POCKET TOURS!

These are just a few of the challenges we're determined to address with Pocket Tours, an app designed not only to resolve these issues but also to empower both tour creators and listeners alike.

A subscription-based business model that also welcomes SMEs into the fold, promising to revolutionize walking tours worldwide. From bustling cities to serene villages, majestic mountains to captivating museums, this innovation targets one of the largest markets in the industry, ensuring an unparalleled experience for everyone.
